FOREWORD

It is my pleasure to introduce the latest edition of the IAAF Constitution which includes the additions and amendments approved by the 49th IAAF Congress in Moscow, Russia.

This edition, which is in force from 1st November 2013, defines and regulates our organisation reflecting the evolving need to keep pace with the developments in our sport. Most significantly there are new articles concerning the revised Code of Ethics, the appointment of the members of the new Ethics Commission, the obligations of Council Members and the powers of Council to provisionally suspend a Member Federation, which illustrate the IAAF's unwavering commitment to safeguard the integrity of Athletics.

It remains for me to thank all those who have been involved in the drafting of this new edition of our Constitution, including members of the World Athletics Family, IAAF Council, Juridical Commission and Staff.

Lamine Diack
IAAF President

HISTORY

THE FOUNDATION YEARS 1912-1914

On July 17th, 1912, two days after the last Athletics event of the Olympic Games, a Congress was held in Stockholm for the formation of an International Federation for Amateur Athletics. The following seventeen countries were represented at this historic meeting: : Australasia (present day - AUS & NZL), Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain (present day - GBR & IRE), Greece, Hungary, Norway, Russia, Sweden, and the United States. There was an urgent need for an international governing body for Athletics owing to the development of international competitions and the Olympic Games. A universal code of rules and regulations and a common amateur definition acceptable throughout the world had become essential, as well as an authentic register of World and Olympic Records.

Though this meeting in Stockholm was, strictly speaking, an exploratory one, records of the IAAF regard it as the first Congress and subsequent Congresses have been designated accordingly.

One year later in Berlin (1913), Congress accepted the first Constitution and thirty-four nations figured on the membership list. J. Sigfrid Edström (Sweden) was elected President and Kristian Hellström Honorary Secretary. The first technical rules for international competitions were presented in 1914 at the third Congress in Lyon, France, by the new Honorary Secretary, Hilding Kjellman (Sweden), and Members were urged to adopt similar rules for their domestic competitions.

OFFICERS AND STRUCTURE

In 1930, Bo Ekelund (Sweden) became the third Honorary Secretary-Treasurer, a post he held until 1946. A prominent member of the Rules and Records Committee at that time was Avery Brundage (USA), later to become IOC President. This was the body then responsible for keeping World Records, and this task fell principally to Szilárd Stankovits (Hungary) who was also largely responsible for the decision to stage the first European Championships (1934, Turin).

In 1946, the IAAF Headquarters moved from Stockholm to London when Lord Burghley (GB & NI) (later to become the Marquess of Exeter) took over from J. Sigfrid Edström (Sweden) as President. E.J.H. “Billy” Holt (GB & NI) was Honorary Secretary-Treasurer until after the 1952 Helsinki Olympic Games, when Donald Pain (GB & NI) took over this responsibility, a position he held for seventeen years until Frederick Holder (GB & NI) succeeded him in 1970. At the 1976 Montreal Congress, Adriaan Paulen (Netherlands) succeeded Lord Exeter as President. The position of Secretary-Treasurer was split: Frederick Holder was re-elected Honorary Treasurer and the new Council appointed John Holt (GB & NI) as General Secretary.

Upon the retirement of Adriaan Paulen in 1981, Primo Nebiolo (Italy) became the IAAF President, only the fourth person to hold this office in eighty years. After his death in November 1999, Council appointed Senior Vice President Lamine Diack (Senegal) as acting President until the 2001 Congress in Edmonton, when Mr Diack was duly elected as President. He was re-elected in 2003, 2007 and 2011. At the 2003 IAAF Congress, Robert Stinson (GB & NI) stood down as Honorary Treasurer after nineteen years in that position. He was replaced by Jean Poczobut (France). Council Member István Gyulai (Hungary) was appointed as General Secretary at the end of 1991 and remained General Secretary until his death in March 2006, when General Director Pierre Weiss (France) was appointed as his successor. At the 2011 Congress Mr Poczobut stood down from Council and Valentin Balakhnichev (Russia) was elected Honorary Treasurer, a position which was renamed Treasurer in 2012. Also at the end of 2011, Mr Weiss retired and Essar Gabriel (France) was appointed General Secretary.

In 1912, the Council was composed of seven members including the President. After gradual increases, the number of members went up to 19 in 1976 with the addition of four Vice Presidents, and reached 27 in 1995. In 2001, the Congress decided that the General Secretary, in addition to the 27 elected members, is ex officio member of the Council. In 2005, the third female Council Member was elected, bringing the total number to 28 for an interim period until 2007. From 2007 (until 2011), the Council comprises four female members with a total of 27 members. Since 2011, without an increase to the total number of members, the Council has six elected female members and in 2013, the Congress decided that the General Secretary would no longer be an ex officio member of the Council.

In 2003, it was agreed that the IAAF should be regarded as the world governing body not only for track and field athletics, road running, race walking and cross country running but also for mountain running. The steady growth of the Association has accelerated in recent decades; 212 Members are currently affiliated. Representatives from the Member Federations gather every two years at the IAAF Congress, which is the IAAF's ultimate decision-making body.

AREAS

Continental and Regional Games and Championships, which help in assessing overall progress and provide an incentive to all countries within the group, started to develop and play an important role early. Obviously, organising them was a matter for the athletically strong countries in the respective continents and areas. Consudatle, the South American Confederation, the first area association, was founded as early as 1918. Then the IAAF created a European Committee to be in charge of the European Championships which were founded in 1934.

At the 1968 Congress, the Constitution was amended to provide for the setting up of other Continental Area Associations within the IAAF similar to Consudatle. A further major change in the Constitution in 1968 was to include in the Council a representative of each of the six Continental Areas, elected by the Members in those Area Groups, ensuring a truly world-wide representation in the Council.

The European Athletic Association (EAA) was formed in 1969, its constitution being ratified at the 1970 IAAF Congress. The Statutes of the Oceania Regional Group were approved at the Munich Congress (1972) and those of the African Amateur Athletic Confederation (AAAC) and the Asian Amateur Athletic Association (AAAA) were approved by the Rome Congress (1974). Finally in Barcelona 1989, the North America, Central America and Caribbean Athletic Association, founded in Puerto Rico one year earlier, was ratified by Congress.

In the recent years, a key priority which has been identified is the empowerment of the Area Associations. Through regional workshops and joint meetings, the IAAF is working hand-in-hand with the Areas to find the best and most efficient way to implement programmes that will give more visibility and power to our continental associations, which are crucial for Athletics' future development.

THE INTERNATIONAL OLYMPIC COMMITTEE

Co-operation with the IOC and Olympic Games Organising Committees to ensure the successful staging of Athletics events at the Olympic Games has always been a major feature of the IAAF's activity.

A new dimension to our links with other international sporting bodies was established when in 1985 the Association of Summer Olympic International Federations (ASOIF) was created with IAAF President, Primo Nebiolo, as the first ASOIF President, to be re-elected in 1989, 1993 and 1997.

The link was further strengthened when Primo Nebiolo was appointed IOC member in March 1992 and after his death, the then acting IAAF President Lamine Diack was admitted to the IOC. As of now, two more IAAF Council Members are also IOC Members: Sergey Bubka and Nawal El Moutawakel (Mrs El Moutawakel became a member of the IOC Executive Board in August 2008). In August 2001, at one of the regular joint meetings of the IOC Executive Board and the IAAF Council, it was agreed that the IAAF flag would also fly alongside the Olympic flag at future Olympics.

In recent years the IAAF and the IOC have worked in close collaboration to finalise the qualification phase, technical aspects, competition programme and timetable of the Youth Olympic Games which were organised for the first time in August 2010 in Singapore.

IAAF COMPETITIONS

Up to and including Moscow 1980, the Olympic Games were considered also the official World Championships in Athletics. During those decades, every Olympic winner could be regarded also as World Champion.

The Games apart, the IAAF World Race Walking Cup and the IAAF World Cross Country Championships are the two oldest events in the association's calendar. The Lugano Trophy, forerunner of the World Race Walking Cup, first took place in 1961. The International Cross Country Championships began as early as 1903, came under the auspices of the IAAF only seventy years later.

The following year brought the first IAAF World Cup in Düsseldorf, and in 1978 the historic decision was made to organise World Championships in Athletics separate from the Olympic Games five years later. Also in 1978, the first in a brief series of “IAAF Golden Events”, the Golden Mile was held in Tokyo. Eleven more such events, all for men, were staged until 1982.

It was in the 1980s that the IAAF Competition Programme expanded greatly. In 1980, the IAAF Council selected Helsinki as venue for its first World Championships. The year also saw two more special World Championship events which were missing from the programme of the Olympic Games in Moscow - the women’s 3000 metres and 400 metre hurdles. It was to be the last time that the IAAF would need to compensate for the limitations of the Olympic Programme which has since been identical to the programme of the IAAF World Championships. In August 1983 the first IAAF World Championships were held and, coming after two successive Olympic Games spoiled by boycotts, were a huge success. Helsinki saw participation by the largest global representation in sports history.

In late 1983, the IAAF World 10 km Road Race Championship for Women was held in San Diego. This developed into a regular World Championship event, as did the 1985 World Indoor Games in Paris, forerunner of the IAAF World Indoor Championships in Athletics.

In 1985, the IAAF identified a need for all these events to be co-ordinated and the “World Athletics Series” was born as a package of IAAF events. The first cycle, from 1985 to 1987, included the inaugural IAAF World Marathon Cup, the IAAF World Junior Championships and the IAAF Grand Prix Final.

The Grand Prix emerged from another development of 1983 when the IAAF’s Amateurism and Eligibility Working Group recommended the concept of International Invitation Meetings. Two years later, the IAAF launched the Grand Prix, linking the best of these invitation meetings and culminating in a final at the end of the season with awards for the season’s best performers.

The second World Athletics Series cycle, covering the period 1988 to 1991, comprised 22 IAAF events. At the end of this package, it was decided to hold the IAAF World Championships every two years. Further innovations continued into the 1990s. Throughout that decade, the IAAF World Cross Challenge was staged, linking the world's leading cross country races on an annual basis. The IAAF World Road Relay Championships were introduced in 1992 and held on three further occasions. The IAAF World Half Marathon Championships (men and women) replaced the 10/15 km road race for women from 1992 to be held annually, though the World Cup was switched back to every four years from 1994. From 1998 the IAAF Golden League and the IAAF World Combined Events Challenge were introduced. Biennial World Youth Championships in Athletics started in 1999 and received great support. In 2000, it was decided to make the number of IAAF events in odd and even years more evenly balanced. To this end, the IAAF World Indoor Championships were moved to an even-year schedule from 2004. The IAAF Race Walking Challenge series was inaugurated in 2003. That year also saw a re-structure of the one-day meeting circuit to include the Golden League, Super Grand Prix and Grand Prix meetings. The Grand Prix Final was replaced as the seasonal finale by "The World Athletics Final", comprising 35 disciplines of track and field.

Throughout these times of huge growth in IAAF competitions, the link with the Olympic Games has remained strong with the Association's close involvement in the organisation of the programme of track and field, which uncontested remains the number one sport of the Olympics Games.

In 2010, the IAAF World Athletics Series comprises eight competitions: World Championships, World Indoor Championships, World Junior Championships, World Youth Championships, Continental Cup, World Cross Country Championships, World Race Walking Cup and World Half Marathon Championships. Also starting in 2010, due to the agreed changes in the one-day meetings' structure the World Athletics Final was discontinued. The frequency of two Championships has also been modified: World Cross Country Championships every two years in odd years and the World Half Marathon Championships every two years in the even years. The 2011 Congress approved the principle of creating a new World Relay competition and at the Council meeting held in London during the 2012 Olympic Games the IAAF World Relays was created with its first edition to be held in The Bahamas in 2014.

Amendments to the one-day meetings' structure were agreed in 2009 and the structure is comprised of three (3) levels of competitions: Diamond League, World Challenge and Area meetings. In 2010, the Diamond League with 14 international meetings replaced the Golden League and a Hammer Throw Challenge was also introduced.

WORLD RECORDS

In the inaugural list of World Records published in 1914, there were 53 Men's Records of Running, Hurdling and Relay Racing, 30 for Race Walking and 12 for Field Events, including the Decathlon. No records for women existed at that time. Since then, changes have been made, so that the list is now considerably altered. A major change was made at the 30th Congress in Montreal in 1976, when imperial distances, except the 1 Mile (Men and Women), were deleted. The IAAF agreed to accept "IAAF World Road Bests" from 1 January 2003 in 18 events, including the Men's and Women's Marathon. It was also agreed to add the three championship Race Walking distances to this list and to regard all these best road marks as "IAAF World Road Records" from 1st January 2004. In 2007 it was decided that transponder (chip) time performances can also be accepted as official for the purpose of World Record ratification in Road events.

In 1987, World Records for Junior Men and Junior Women were inaugurated and also the first list of World Indoor Records was published, again for Men and Women.

In 2011, the Congress approved amendments to the Rules pertaining to World Records: the introduction of World Junior Indoor Records, the list of Junior Indoor events and the distinction between performances achieved by women in women only and mixed Road Races.

In 2013, the Women's 4 x 1500m World Record Lists and the 49th IAAF Congress in Moscow, Russia approved keeping two World Records for women in Road Races: a World Record for performance achieved in races where women and men compete together and a World Record for performance achieved in races during which only women compete.

As per Competition Rules 260 to 264, the IAAF ratifies world record performances in over 219 events: in-stadia, non-stadia, indoors, seniors, juniors and junior indoors.

Approximately, 2760 marks have been approved as world records by the IAAF by the end of 2013.

In 1926, the Dutch Athletic Federation (KNAU) presented the first “slow motion” apparatus for photo-finish judging, to eliminate the human factor from finish judging and timing. This was used in 1928 at the Olympic Games in Amsterdam, and in 1930 electrically timed performances were accepted for World Record purposes. Since January 1977, for records up to and including 400 metres, only performances timed by fully automatic electrical timing have been accepted. Since 1st January 1981, for all races up to and including 10,000m, times are recorded to 0.01 second when electrically timed. The latest photo finish systems use synchronised digital cameras from both sides of the finish line and incorporate a head-on video camera to help identify athletes accurately. In 2005, it was agreed that transponder (chip) timed performances can also be accepted as official for cross country, road running and road race walking competitions.

MEDICAL AND ANTI-DOPING

The IAAF is proudly committed to keeping its athletes healthy and to its zero-tolerance policy with respect to doping.

As early as 1928 at the Amsterdam Congress, the first Anti-Doping Rule was approved. Doping Control now is conducted at all major competitions. The IAAF works together with the IOC and the other Olympic Federations with whom a joint declaration against doping was signed in 1989. In 1989 also, random testing out-of-competition was initiated, and this has become a regular feature of the IAAF programme, both at national and international level.

Since 1995, the IAAF has been at the forefront of the campaign for global harmonization of all anti-doping related activities, a campaign that, ultimately in 2003, resulted in the creation of the World Anti-Doping Code. At its Congress in Paris later the same year, the IAAF accepted the World Anti-Doping Code as a basis for the fight against doping in sport and the new IAAF anti-doping rules were introduced with effect from 1st March 2004. In 2007, the Code underwent a substantial review and the approved new version came into force as from 1st January 2009. Further revision is currently under way with the new code due to come into force from 1st January 2015.

The IAAF has also been forerunner in the establishment of a list of accredited laboratories around the world and a list of prohibited substances. The concept of accredited laboratories was then further developed by the IOC and this list, as well as the prohibited substance list, is now published by the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA).

In addition to pursuing its own programmes, the IAAF now regularly works alongside WADA and other international anti-doping organisation partners in order to maximize the effectiveness of the fight against doping in sport.

The IAAF conducts an extensive anti-doping programme, including approximately 3,500 annual in and out-of-competition tests, scientific research and informational and educational projects and is determined to remain the leading international sports federation in this regard.

In recent years the IAAF has increasingly shown its commitment to a rigorous implementation of the Athlete Biological Passport by conducting numerous blood tests across the major athletics events for this purpose. This concept focusses on proving the use and effect of prohibited substances and methods by monitoring abnormal variations in an athlete's biomarkers over time.

AMATEURISM

The Eligibility Rules have come under close scrutiny in the last quarter of the last century. Considerable amendments approved by the IAAF Congress in 1982 (Athens) in the first instance and in 1999 (Seville) allow athletes to receive payments for participation and performance in international competitions. It was decided to retain the word "amateur" in the title of the IAAF until the Congress of 2001, when the IAAF's name was changed from the "International Amateur Athletic Federation" to the "International Association of Athletics Federations".

Advertising within the arena and on the athletes themselves is now allowed, under strict control. In 1991, Congress voted to accept professional sportsmen from other sports as eligible athletes.

At the end of March 1996, the IAAF Council took a decision of historical importance for the Athletics Movement. It agreed to make “Competition Awards” available to top-placed athletes at the IAAF World Championships in Athletics and other events of the World Athletics Series for seniors.

ATHLETICS FOR WOMEN

By 1924, a separate Federation governing Women’s Athletics had been founded, the FSFI. At the Paris Congress (1924) the IAAF supported the FSFI’s request for the inclusion of five women’s events in the programme of the Amsterdam Olympic Games - 100m, 800m, 4 x 100m, High Jump and Discus Throw. Since these early days, Women’s Athletics has continued to produce ever-improving performances in ever greater depth. Nowadays, the programme of men’s and women’s events at World Indoor Championships is identical, while at World Championships in Athletics there is just one male-only event: the 50 km Race Walk. The Steeplechase was added to the World Championship programme for junior women in 2004 (3000m) and senior women in 2005 (3000m). It was also included for the first time as part of the Olympic competition programme at the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games.

The IAAF Development Programme regularly focuses on Women’s Track & Field, with specialist symposia, courses and workshops held at the Regional Development Centres.

In 1995, the IAAF Congress elected Nawal El Moutawakel (Morocco) and Abby Hoffman (Canada) as the first two women members to the IAAF Council. In 2003, Congress decided to increase the female representation on the IAAF Council to minimum of three from 2005. The 2005 Congress agreed a minimum female representation from 2007: on each of the IAAF Committees and Commissions and an increase on the IAAF Council to a minimum of four. In accordance with the decision taken by the 47th IAAF Congress (Berlin 2009), six female Council Members were elected during the 2011 Congress in Daegu, Korea.

RACE WALKING

Race Walking has been part of the international Athletics programme since the Olympic Games in London 1908. The IAAF has followed its development over the decades with much care and attention.

After years of research, the IAAF Congress in 1995 accepted a new definition for Race Walking (Rule 230) noting that further study was necessary. Women's Race Walking continues to gain ground, and the creation of the World Race Walking Cup has encouraged new countries to extend their Race Walking programme for women. The 10,000m Race Walk for Women, featuring from 1985 in all major IAAF Cups, Games and Championships, was added to the Olympic Programme in 1992 and the distance has been changed to 20km from 1999. Race Walking events, however, have been deleted from the programme of international indoor championships. In 2003, the IAAF Race Walking Challenge was inaugurated with a series of five races culminating in the World Championships. The same year the IAAF Congress approved the ratification of World Records also in non-stadia Race Walking events.

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

The IAAF development activities date back to the mid-seventies when the Congress in Montreal approved the Technical Aid Programme proposed by József Sir (Hungary) who later became the first director of the programme. Since 1985 a network of Regional Development Centres, covering all six IAAF Areas, has supported the work of the Member Federations by providing a focal point for the programme of development activities in their region. In accordance with the declaration of the late Primo Nebiolo that the nineties shall be the Decade of Development, these years saw a dynamic increase of development activities all over the world.

Since the implementation of the IAAF Development Programme in 1990, the IAAF, through its RDCs, has offered to the Member Federations a diverse programme of activities such as study courses, competition consultancies, seminars and workshops for coaches, technical officials, competition organisers and other key federation personnel. More than 20,000 persons have benefited from these activities worldwide. The IAAF also provides information through a growing number of technical publications, posters and audio-visual material. In close co-operation with Olympic Solidarity and other international partners, the IAAF started in 1997 to set up High Performance Training Centres to provide places of excellence for the training and development of international class athletes and coaches. In order to make certified training facilities of approved standard and high level specialised coaching widely available for the members of the Athletics Family, the IAAF has also established a network of Accredited Training Centres worldwide.

Created in 2005, the Kids' Athletics Programme is intended to bring excitement into playing athletics, by providing children with the opportunity to make the most of the beneficial practice of Athletics, in terms of Health, Education and Self-fulfilment. This programme has been designed in the frame of a global athletics policy for children from 6 to 12 years old. With its approach being entertaining and attractive and particularly adapted to young children, Kids' Athletics has been established successfully in over 120 Members worldwide.

WORLD ATHLETICS DAY

In 1996, the IAAF organised the first annual World Athletics Day to unite youngsters around the world in a spirit of competition and common endeavour. Hundreds of thousands of junior athletes participated in Athletics competitions on this occasion to earn the right to participate in a draw which took two boys and two girls from each IAAF continental area to see the world's top athletes competing in the Atlanta Olympics (1996). The yearly editions since then have been equally successful.

INTERNET

The IAAF Website was launched on 17 May 1996, containing thousands of pages of information about the IAAF. A real-time result service, expert reports and a photograph service became available, including start lists, results and general information on the venues and events, for all IAAF World Athletics Series events, for the first time in 1997. The IAAF Website, a daily electronic newspaper offering an abundant amount of information about Athletics online, has become the first point of reference for the media and the fans around the world. Relaunched in November 2012 and fully interlinked with the IAAF's extensive social media presence on Facebook, Twitter and YouTube, the IAAF Website serves as a daily electronic newspaper offering an abundant amount of information about Athletics and is the first point of reference for media and fans around the world.

THE IAAF CERTIFICATION SYSTEM

Seeing the rapid development in the manufacture of synthetic track surfaces, Athletics equipment and implements the IAAF introduced a system of certification in 1999.

The goal of the Certification System is to ensure that facilities, equipment and implements used in Athletics competitions conform to IAAF's specifications, thereby guaranteeing the validity and accuracy of performances, the safety of athletes, preventing the unauthorised use of the IAAF's name and safeguarding the integrity of the sport.

IAAF HONOURS

The award of the IAAF Veteran Pin was instituted in 1928, with 12 initial recipients and currently 18, with a maximum of 21. Further IAAF honours, such as the IAAF Golden Order of Merit, the IAAF Silver Order of Merit and the IAAF Plaque of Merit (6 recipients are awarded, every two years during Congress), were created later and are awarded on opportune occasions to worthy recipients for meritorious service to the cause of Athletics. As part of the celebrations to mark the IAAF Centenary in 2012, the IAAF Hall of Fame was inaugurated with the first 24 members, all athletics legends, inducted at the IAAF Centenary Gala in Barcelona in November 2012.
